(1) Former Premier Nagy on the present Soviet line towards the Iron Curtian countries. ...(3) The future of the Veterans Organizations. The debate around the MEBK (Collegial Society of Hungarian Veterans) continues. Polemics are particularly sharp between the Pro-MEBK Hungaria and the now very critical Uj Hungaria. The latter paper (May 22) under Baron Antal Radvanszky regards certain tendencies encouraged by MEBK's present leader, General Andras Zako, as raising the ghosts of "Soldiers Soviets". .....Antal Radvanszky is accused of trying to interfere with military matters in order to make trouble and to push himself into the limelight. During the years of emigration political leaders tried to widen conflicts between Generals and divided them into opposite camps. General Andras Zako who had begun to organize resistance against Soviet domination already in 1944, succeeded, however, to unite the overwhelming majority of soldiers and officers behind him who expressed their willingness to sacrifice their lives for the Fatherland, even in emigration. General Zako could have become their Commander-in-chief without violating the Service Regulations. He, however, preferred to organize MEBK on a voluntary principle. He consulted Regent Miklos Horthy, Archduke Joseph and other high generals. They all approved of his work. MEBK succeeded in organizing 15,000 men. .....Az Ember (May 30) continues its campaign against MEBK, General Zako and Tibor Eckhardt, but its arguments differ little from the usual line.
